HOUSE VOTES INVESTIGATION OF U. S. NAVY!

PREMIER SAYS OBLIGATIONS TO BE MET

Assures U. S. Ambassador France Never Planned To Avoid Payment

BULLETIN
PARIS, Dec. 30.—Premier Herriot assured United States Ambassador Herrick this afternoon that France has never considered repudiating its debt to America.

Herrick was received in audience by the premier specifically to discuss the statement of Finance Minister Clementel that France's war debts were "political."

BULLETIN
PARIS, Dec. 30.—France has no intention of repudiating its debt to the United States, Jacques Seydoux, expert adviser to Minister of Finance Clementel, told International News Service today.

"The French attitude in regard to its inter-allied debts is unchanged," Seydoux said. Seydoux is director of the commercial and political affairs in the French foreign office.

"France has not and never will repudiate its obligations."

By FRANK E. MASON
For International News Service.
PARIS, Dec. 30.—France returned her soft answer today to the storm of resentment raised in America by Clementel's discussion of allied debts.

While the official viewpoint was being made known through an editorial sanctioned by the government, the Chamber of Deputies at noon voiced its confidence in Minister Clementel by a vote of 325 to 200 on the question of a monthly provisional budget appropriation of 4,800,000,000 francs.

Called "Theoretical"
In effect, the government-in-lease denied that the French finance minister had flatly repudiated its debt to America, said that his idea that war obligations should be pooled and pro-rated according to ability to pay, was but a "theoretical view" and hoped that the "troublesome and inexact impression created in the United States" had been the result of the cabling of the separate paragraphs from Clementel's inventory of the situation.

London In Grip Of Hurricane's Fury All Night

LONDON, Dec. 30.—London was experiencing today another fierce gale, the second in a week. Wind of hurricane proportion blew all night.

A sixty-mile gale was blowing across the English channel, and huge seas were breaking over sea walls at coastal towns and doing great damage. The Thames continued to rise. Floods have done extensive damage. The total loss caused by the two storms will be enormous.

Southampton channel steamers were unable to leave port. The Royal Mail liners Avon and Sarthe have been held up by the gale. The Sarthe developed engine trouble 200 miles at sea in the storm Saturday and was forced to return to port.

Both vessels are on the South American run. The Greek steamer Michael Marias was reported ashore.

Trophy Given High School Grid Team
Coveted Prize Is Presented By Walter Eckersall; Letters Awarded

The trophy symbolic of gridiron supremacy in Southern California among high school teams today was presented to Glendale in recognition of the valiant work of the class A team on the football field during the past season. The trophy was presented at a meeting held this afternoon in the auditorium of the Broadway High school.

Three banners, setting forth the fact that the three Glendale football teams finished in first place in the Central league for 1924, were also presented to the school. As far as can be ascertained, this is the first time in the history of Southern California pro football when one school had three winners the same year.

Fifty-four members of the three teams which represented Glendale on the gridiron during the past season were awarded the coveted letters. Porter Thompson, demon backfield plunger on the class B team, and John Lovell, stellar kicker of the same team, received the signal honor of two letters, one for their good work on the light-weight team and one for their point-adding activities in the two final games of the Southern California playoff with the heavy-weights.

Eckersall Speaks
Walter Eckersall, classed by many as the greatest football player of all time, presented the trophy to Captain Dick Ryan of the class A team after he had addressed the members of the three teams and students on the value of clean sport in schools. Captain Ryan gave the trophy to Leslie Lavelle, president of the student body, who presided at the meeting, and was in turn presented to the student body.

Following the presentation, brief addresses were made by President Lavelle, Captain Ryan, Coaches Hayhurst and Pierce, Albert Pierce, president of the school board; Dr. H. V. Brown, George Bentley, Mrs. George Moyse and A. L. Ferguson.

TROTSKY HELD CAPTIVE BY ENEMIES

Russian Commissar of War Is Prisoner of Soviet; May Be Exiled

BERLIN, Dec. 30.—Leon Trotsky, Russian commissar for war, as a prisoner in the hands of his soviet contemporaries and on the verge of exile, was the view presented today in dispatches from Moscow and reports reaching European capitals.

The Rudder, a Russian newspaper, published in Berlin, printed a dispatch from Moscow saying that Trotsky was held a virtual prisoner after being invited to a meeting of the council of commissars last week.

Put Under Guard
Instead of being permitted to go after the meeting, he was offered rooms in the commissar's building, where he was placed under close guard by the Cheka, the soviet secret service.

The telephone was removed from the room, and he remains there, the dispatch said, isolated from his friends and not allowed to receive messages or even newspapers.

Held in Kremlin
LONDON, Dec. 30.—Reports received here today, brought from Moscow by travelers, said Leon Trotsky was held a prisoner in the Kremlin because of his refusal to leave Moscow.

Unable to Travel
BELGRADE, Dec. 30.—Leon Trotsky's physician has certified that travel would endanger the health of the soviet war commissar, and thereby has frustrated for a time at least, the banishment of the bitterly criticized leader, according to Moscow dispatches received here.

Gregory Zinoviev, president of the executive committee of the Communist Internationale, was reported insistent on Trotsky's banishment, and for that purpose has secured a villa in Italy, the dispatches said.

Mississippi Ice Jams Peril City
Water Rises to Over Eight Feet at St. Louis; Throws Scare

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 30.—An ice jam believed to be south of here, caused the Mississippi river to reach a stage of 8.2 feet here today. This is the highest stage since 1917 and represents a rise of 4 1/2 feet since yesterday noon.

Delays Identification Of Alleged Slayer Because Suspect Is His Barber!

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 30.—Because the man he says he recognized as one who killed his partner was jail barber and shaved him frequently, Bartholomew Betti delayed accusing his cellmate, William I. Hollingsworth, of the slaying of Julius Benventue until he was released from jail today.

"I recognized him six months ago as the man who killed my partner during a holdup," Betti told police today, "but I was afraid to say anything until I was released."

Benventue was killed in a holdup last January 13. Hollingsworth is serving a sentence as one of three auto bandits who held up Police Lieutenant Mignola a year and a half ago. Mignola wounded two of the bandits in a gun battle.

Betti told police he was so certain of his identification he was willing to swear to a warrant for the new charge against Hollingsworth. The latter was arrested in Los Angeles for the Mignola case and escaped from a hospital, being later recaptured in Omaha.

Official Word Britain Still Lacking On Findings
Report of Doctors on Cause Of McClintock's Death Not Made Public

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—With only rumor and gossip to feed the fire of insinuation which has kept it seething for over a week, the McClintock death probe cauldron was only simmering today.

Unauthenticated reports purporting to contain "inside information" concerning the findings of the doctors who examined the exhumed body of "Billy" McClintock continued to fly about the coroner's office but there was none among those whose word would be official who was willing to sponsor them.

Rumors Persist
Most persistent of the rumors was one which held that the partial report of Dr. William McNally, coroner's chemist, submitted privately to Coroner Oscar Wolff yesterday, showed no evidence that the last blood he drew from the McClintock corpse had died other than a natural death.

This report continued despite the fact that it was seemingly at odds with the veiled hints which those interested read into Coroner Wolff's assertion yesterday that he would not make the partial report public since it "contained information which might be misconstrued."

M'COY'S CASE TO HIGHER TRIBUNAL

Former Pugilist, Conscious He's Cornered, Takes Steps to Appeal

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 30.—"Kid" McCoy today was slowly recovering from the worst defeat of his spectacular career.

Vaguely conscious that he is cornered, the "Kid"—even unable to fully realize that the jury he had so confidently counted upon to free him from the charge of murdering Mrs. Teresa Moss unexpectedly returned a verdict of manslaughter late yesterday—means to go down fighting to the last.

"I'm not through yet—not yet," monotonously droned McCoy today, as he fingered the bars of his cell door. It was a broken figure that refused to admit defeat. The blandly smiling, confident McCoy of the trial days had vanished, and in his place stood a nervously twitching, shrunken prisoner, who seemed to dread what tomorrow might hold.

To Appeal Case
"We feel the verdict was unfair, and will appeal the decision," defense attorneys said. "If McCoy is granted a new trial it must be remembered he can only be tried for manslaughter."

The verdict, from the viewpoint of the defense, was not taken from evidence in the case. It was either murder or suicide. The manslaughter verdict was plainly a compromise, they said.

'Ten Minute Bride' to Face Divorce Courts
SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 30.—Harry Hines, Broadway comedian, now playing in a San Francisco theatre, is expected to file suit here today through his attorney, William J. Gloria, for the annulment of his marriage to Virginia Cook, his "ten minute bride."

In his complaint Hines charges that on Christmas morning his wife "threw a phonograph record" at him.

Mrs. Hines is on her way back to Seattle, where she was married to the comedian recently after a courtship of little over an hour, following their acquaintance "at a party," according to Hines.

Mother Tells Of Killing 4 Of Her Family

LOGANSPORT, Ind., Dec. 30.—A tale of torture and suffering, climaxing Christmas day when her baby girl received no presents, was poured out in a police cell here today by Emma Hough, 33, held for yesterday's shotgun massacre at Bethlehem township, ten miles north of here.

"God knows all about it," the frail, emaciated woman repeated, explaining the murder of her father, Henry Bassler, 69; her mother, Catherine; her own daughter, Viola, 3, and her brother, John, 23.

"God knows how mean they were to me and my baby. They wouldn't buy me any clothes; they wouldn't buy Viola any clothes; they didn't feed us. They wouldn't buy my baby any Christmas toys. She had no Christmas. They forced me to toil in the fields and only yesterday, Johnny, the only brother I have in the world, knocked me down and dragged me out into the snow."

Rescue Crew, Passengers From Ship
Cargo of Nitrate Thrown In Sea When Fire Sweeps Japanese Vessel

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 30.—With the vessel a mass of flames and rapidly casting off its freight cargo of nitrate, highly explosive, 240 passengers and members of the crew of the Japanese liner Ginyo Maru were rescued early today off the Mexican coast, when other vessels heard the frantic wireless calls of the doomed vessel and rushed to her assistance.

The fire was discovered shortly after midnight, according to wireless messages received here when the big ship, which was en route from the canal zone to Japan, via Los Angeles and San Francisco, had reached a point 50 miles northwest of Acapulco, Mexico.

Destined for Japan
The ship's passengers and cargo were taken aboard at Valparaiso and both were destined for Japan. Few details of the rescue of more than 200 persons from open boats were secured from the Julia Luckenbach, a big freighter plying between San Francisco and New York. It is believed a calm sea assisted in the abandonment of the ship and subsequent rescue without casualties.

A wireless message today to the T. K. K. company offices here from the Ginyo Maru said members of her crew had returned to the ship to assist the captain and other officers in fighting the fire.

Rumor Ball Deal
CLEARWATER, Fla., Dec. 30.—Charles H. Ebbetts, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, would neither verify nor deny rumors here today that he had bought or traded for Emmett McCann, second baseman, and Jim Poole, first baseman of the Portland club.

TAKES ACTION IN FACE OF COOLIDGE'S PROTEST

Secretary Wilbur Will Be Questioned; European Nations on Watch

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—Simultaneously with the announcement today that President Coolidge hopes to see another conference for the limitation of naval armaments "within a year," the House naval affairs committee voted for a thorough investigation into the present condition and needs of the American navy.

The vote for the Congressional investigation was a severe defeat for the administration forces, which under the president's guidance, has consistently opposed any inquiry into the navy's alleged deficiencies at this time.

Makes Objections
The inquiry was voted, furthermore, after vigorous objections by Chairman Butler, Republican of Pennsylvania, who said:

"I know it is the view of President Coolidge that there will be another arms conference within a year and we don't want anything done here to interfere with his plans or with the holding of such a conference."

Notwithstanding this plea, the committee straightway voted for the inquiry and decided to call Secretary Wilbur on January 8 to explain the navy's shortcomings in auxiliary naval craft, gun elevation and allied subjects.

Coolidge Doubtful
While the navy probe was being voted at the capitol, it was announced at the White House that President Coolidge is doubtful of the necessity of building in a single fiscal year the eight new cruisers recently authorized by Congress.

The authorization bill has been referred to the budget bureau for information, and for report. The president will act after these have been made.

"The secretary of state has reported," Butler said, "that conditions of the existing arms treaty are being carried out with scrupulous honesty."

"Everything we do or talk about is watched in Europe. I do not say that it is causing feverish anxiety, but it is being watched closely. I think we should know what we want to ask the secretary before he comes."

The resolution calling Secretary Wilbur was adopted after Butler had declared indignantly: "I seem to have been accused of failing to comply with the wishes of this committee to have the secretary questioned." He admitted he had called off a previous meeting of the secretary with the committee.

ROCKEFELLER TO GIVE ANOTHER MILLION
NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—John D. Rockefeller, jr., is going to give away still another million. As a sequel to his gift yesterday of $1,000,000 in oil stock to the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, it was learned this afternoon the multi-millionaire plans to give an educational institution, as yet unnamed, $1,000,000 as a New Year's gift.

PROPOSES REGULATING WEIGHT OF BREAD
WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—A bill designed to standardize the weight of loaf bread and prevent an annual loss of $100,000,000 through short weight was introduced in the Senate today by Senator Capper, Republican, of Kansas. The American people are losing $300,000 daily, or more than $100,000,000 a year by "short weight," that is, charging full prices for a "short loaf," twelve ounces for sixteen, or 20 for 24 ounces, Capper said.

City Council Denies All Sycamore Canyon Protests

The City Council this morning, by unanimous vote, denied all protests at the hearing on the assessment for the improvement of Sycamore Canyon road, and confirmed the assessment superintendant.

The action came after a two-hour discussion, entered into by numbers of property owners, some of whom favored altering the assessment roll and others of whom approved the proceedings as drawn up. W. D. Howells and Rev. A. B. Smart were among those who were satisfied the assessment was just.

Important information bearing on the subject was brought out by the following dialogue between R. Belcher and Councilman C. E. Kimlin and others:

Called "Unjust"
R. Belcher—"The assessment is unjust because it makes the district off the main street pay too much for the flood-control feature."

Year's Record For Building Set Yesterday

Yesterday was one of the biggest building days in the year, a total of $113,200 in permits being issued, according to the official records of H. C. Vandewater. At noon today the total for the year stood at $10,010,111, just $37,490 short of the 1923 record, when permits totaling $10,047,601 were issued. So far this month, the total is $685,400. Mr. Vandewater's records show. With a day and the one-half yet to go before the building office closes for the year, Mr. Vandewater states definitely: "The 1923 record will be surpassed."

The damage was slight, being estimated at between $1600 and $2000.

WAR DEBT IS LAUGHED AT BY FRANCE

Series Of Mix-Ups Waited As Allies Attempt To Dodge Issue

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News. Copyright, 1924
WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—France has no serious intention of paying America in the immediate future anything on war debts.

This fact more than anything else is responsible for the series of mix-ups and misunderstandings which diplomacy is trying to iron out as between the French government and Washington.

Ambassador Jusserand who is retiring soon with the best record of friendship and personal popularity that any envoy has enjoyed in a generation naturally wanted to do something before he left to clear up the only unsettled problem between France and the United States. The Herriot government in Paris also realized that it was a long time since France had sent M. Parmentier to discuss the question of debts and that the United States could not play the part of a pressing bill collector. Congress had become restive, too, and the French government decided that discussion was at least a sign of good intent.

Draw Inference
M. Jusserand took up the question with the war debt commission created by Congress and expressed to that body in recent conferences substantially the same view which he expounded in a speech last week. The White House was asked by the correspondents for a comment on that speech and it was pointed out that there could be comment only on what was said to the funding commission after the hearing had taken up the matter in due course. The newspaper men drew the inference that a rebuke was being given the French ambassador for utterances in public speeches instead of making an argument to the funding commission. And when the press reports gave the impression of a rebuke, the White House disclaimed such an intention.

No Rebuke Intended
The point, however, is immaterial because the president had no intention of issuing a rebuke to anyone and the French ambassador is not being criticized here for what is known to be the policy of his government.

The incident has simply accentuated the fact that France wants a moratorium and hopes later to make even better terms with the United States than Great Britain did. The American government is embarrassed by the apparent unwillingness of France to pay anything right away and also by the knowledge that if easy terms are granted to France, Great Britain will promptly ask for a revision of the agreement she has with the United States.

The contention is being repeated made by France that owing to the large sacrifices she made of blood as well as treasure she should not be expected to pay anything like the terms America wants. Indeed, the French have never counted the debt to America as a part of their budget of expenses and have made no provision either for interest or for fund. This has not created a very good impression in Congress. Also the international banks who are called upon to persuade the American investor from time to time to buy French government securities are anxious to see the French placed in the best light possible. The funding commission naturally expected some concrete proposals from France but it has become apparent that the French ambassador only has the power to discuss and create a favorable sentiment if possible for a moratorium or easier terms than Great Britain had.

French Viewpoint
The French viewpoint is that America was a belated participant in the war and that none of the allied and associated powers made the sacrifice that France did. Hence the United States should make due allowance. If America does, then the French would expect the British to do likewise.

The French are talking about having Secretary Mellon go to Europe after Congress adjourns in March so that they may explain to him first-hand why they can't pay very much. This suggestion is not making a hit just now, for the usual custom is for the debtor to call on the creditor. In France, however, there is an objection to sending a commission to America unless it can propose some sort of a settlement that will be acceptable. And the French themselves have not arrived at the stage where they consider it possible to make a tangible offer of settlement. So very little may be expected to come of the recent conversations unless the French government finds American public opinion growing more assertive than it has been in the past on the question of early payments.

AGED COLLEGE STUDENT
At Berea college in Kentucky, there is a student who had reached an advanced age before he could read or write. He is John Franklin, a mountaineer, said by some to be a direct descendant of Benjamin Franklin. He decided on an education when, in signing papers in connection with the death of his son in the war, he became so embarrassed at having to make his mark that he applied for instruction in Berea college.

Clever Role

MARY ISABELLE ALPAUGH, who is delighting the aggregors with her work in "I Love You," presented by the Dobinson Players.

Can any two young people of the opposite sex be made to fall in love? That is the question that is being solved in "I Love You," the Dobinson Players are offering for the last times this week, and which has made the biggest hit with the audiences.

Joseph McManus, as Jimmie Farnsworth, the millionaire, host to a group of friends including his fiancée, Ruth Franklin, shocks them all by making the startling statement that "there is no such thing as real love nowadays" and in the discussion that follows wagers $5000 with George Van Horne (Arthur Lovejoy) that given the right environment he can make any two people fall in love and become engaged. George to select the couple while he furnishes the environment. The fun starts with the selection of the couple, Betty, one of the charming guests and Peter Darby, the electrician who is called in to repair the burnt-out fuse, and becomes hilarious when the environment is produced.

Too much praise cannot be said of the exceedingly good work of the players, each vibrant with the desire to get the most out of his part. Joseph McManus in the role of Jimmie Farnsworth, gives a performance in which there is nothing left to be desired and his sincere work has won for him many friends. William H. Stephens also does a fine bit of acting as Brooks, the butler with a master's mind. Mary Isabelle Alpaugh as Ruth, Jimmie's fiancée, is exceptionally well cast and gives a delightful portrayal. Richard Ehlers as Peter Darby, the exuberant electrician, causes an uproar with every speech, and his performance is a real treat. Gertrude Rothe as Betty Duncan, the elected one of the wretched love affair, is most charming and her scenes with both Peter and Brooks are convincing. Rosamonde Joyzelis as Louise Endicott is not only clever but looks beautiful in her stunning gowns. Thyra Ruhland as Marie, the maid, is pert and gives a vivacious interpretation, and Arthur Lovejoy is equally good as George Van Horne. George C. Pearce, director, is to be congratulated for his production. Next week "The Hole in the Wall" will be the attraction.

CONSERVATION COMMISSION IS LAUDED

Better Understanding of Oil Industry on Part of People, Is Belief

This is the third and last of a series of dispatches on the attitude of the oil industry toward President Coolidge's plans for a conservation commission. Mr. Small attended all the sessions of the American Petroleum Institute recently held in Fort Worth, Texas and interviewed all the big men of the industry on what is regarded as one of the greatest problems of the country today.

By ROBERT T. SMALL
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News. Copyright, 1924

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—While in conclusion it may be said that the oil industry does not expect the government to be able to do any valuable concrete thing through the appointment of a conservation commission, it is felt that perhaps a better understanding of the industry on the part of the government, and eventually on the part of the people, may result.

In all of the discussion at the recent meeting of the American Petroleum Institute there was contention that if the government had "dabbled" in the industry during the past ten or fifteen years there would have been no such development as the world knows today.

Judge Amos L. Beatty, head of the Texas Co., expressed the conviction that if the government had owned or controlled the oil "the restrictions upon development and the lack of incentive would have been such that we would not know today the value or uses of petroleum or how to find it. As it is, our leadership is recognized everywhere and the practices are followed. This is truly an American industry, for no matter where on the globe oil is produced, Americans are there."

Decrees Regulation
In a further discussion of this point, Judge Beatty said: "Shall we have government regulation? The answer is we do not need it. I am speaking in the broad sense and am thinking of price fixing and things of that kind. There are a few places where uniform regulation, worked out by those who are familiar with the industry, would be necessary. One of these is where the producer in his greed commits waste at the wells or in storage. We need rules of conduct and an umpire of the game at these points."

The belief among oil men is that their industry must be governed in the future by the natural and economic laws. Relief to the wheat farmers came this year, not by government edict, but by economic laws.

Lauds Commission
The oil industry at heart looks upon the government as a partner in its problems if not in its business. It feels the government can perform useful duties, and if the Coolidge conservation commission can get a better understanding of the industry so much the better.

While the oil men have felt that they were sorely troubled within their own ranks, they have adhered to the theory of enduring the ills that they had rather than flee to those they knew not of.

The oil men may be living in a fool's paradise but it is a fairly true they do not share the government's view of an early and rapid depletion of the oil fields. Discussing this phase of the situation at the Fort Worth meeting, Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank at New York, recalled that it was Mark Twain who classified lies in three groups, lies, damn lies and statistics. Mr. Mitchell added:

"I don't think Mark meant anything unkind of statisticians, and I don't want anybody to think me unkind if, in strict reference to the future oil supply, I venture to suggest the eventual addition of a fourth class, 'the prognostications of the geological scientists.'"

It is fully appreciated that an end will come some day to what is termed now "the petroleum age." But that end is regarded as so far off that before it is reached satisfactory substitutes will be found for all the uses to which oil is put today.

It is admitted that there is a terrific waste of oil. This is particularly true of the fuel oil which is being sold in competition with coal. Some oil men look upon this as the great trouble with the industry today. Selling oil on a competitive price with coal has fixed the price of oil in general.

Watch Development
One reason for the confident attitude of the oil men is that they have seen within the past ten years such wonderful developments in the handling and refining of oil—developments by which one barrel of crude oil is made to do the work of three a few years ago.

President Coolidge's commission is a high class one. It is believed it will learn much by even a casual inquiry into the industry and as Judge Beatty expresses the situation:

"It will be ideal if the petroleum age can close with the people, government and industry in understanding and accord."

COMMENT BY GIL A. COWAN

One topic of conversation rules the day—New Year's.

Glendale is a good football town, and as such its citizenry is discussing Stanford's chances for defeating Notre Dame in the Rose Bowl classic at Pasadena Thursday afternoon.

Other Glendallans, not inclined to take issue in football, are busily penning resolutions, most prominent of which is the declaration: "I will not work another cross word puzzle."

Some few are finding the scowl-law's joys in obtaining a supply of good spirits, but from observation of the effects of the poison gin being peddled this season, may it not be timorously suggested that you celebrate without drinking a thing, at least nothing stronger than Glendale's aqua pura.

Reverting to interest in football here the presentation of championship trophy and banners to Glendale Union High school this afternoon by Walter Eckersall is an event which should long live in the minds of the pupils for never has this writer's alma mater been represented by better eleven. Particular praise is due Coach Normal Hayhurst for his development of Glendale's football prowess, although the other coaches are likewise to be complimented.

Just a sidelight on the Tournament of Roses contest when the Fighting Irish from Indiana meet the Cardinals of the coast:

Try to get a ticket! Sold out two weeks in advance of the game the $5,000 "rootin'" "ootin'" fans are going to be there in full force from all over America. And while you're trying to get a ticket beware the s-l-u-p-er! There may be some so fortunate not to be able to attend and graciously pass their tickets on to another. If they are true sportsmen, they will sell those tickets at face value. Or better yet, they will give them to their best friend.

It will take friendship to get a ticket, all right!

Motorists will appreciate what writers term "the saturation point" in discussing the future of automobile industry when all Southern California tries to get to Pasadena during the last hour before the Tournament pageant.

Wise Glendale drivers will leave for the Crown City, but twenty minutes away on any other day, three hours in Pasadena before they will be in Pasadena in a half hour, or so. But if they wait until 9:30 or 10:00 o'clock, disappointment will greet them at every turn of the road.

And it is only courtesy on the part of those living nearby to leave early for Pasadena in order that those who drive from a distance will have a better chance of seeing the annual review of progress and prosperity.

There is one other word about New Year's. The Glendale Evening News editorial will be out on that day! It may not be the biggest paper in the world, yet it will be among the BEST. You'll be mighty pleased with the fund of information it contains. You'll want to send it to your friends and relatives in the east.

BEAR TEAM READY FOR PENN ELEVEN

Easterners Due to Arrive in Berkeley Today; Hold Final Workout

BERKELEY, Dec. 30.—As University of California wound up its preparations for meeting the eastern invaders here New Year's day, University of Pennsylvania was scheduled to arrive this afternoon.

TUJUNGA NOTES

TUJUNGA, Dec. 30.—A pleasant program is planned for the Christmas tree celebration and watch service at the Episcopal church New Year's eve. Gifts will be distributed to the children and special music will form part of the program, following which a watch service will be held.

Frank Moreland, who is in India employed in oil development, cabled Christmas greetings to his family, Mrs. Josie E. Moreland, 130 South Stevens way.

Miss Charlotte Avery, 233 North Avenue 23, Los Angeles, was injured slightly in an automobile accident in Big Tujunga canyon when the car in which she and others were riding stalled in some sand. She was treated at the Tujunga Emergency hospital and removed to her home.

H. A. LeBrun of the Blue Diamond garage, Sunland, is building a home in the Gem of Tujunga tract. George Weaver of Orland has recently become associated with Mr. LeBrun in the garage business.

Mr. and Mrs. Blodgett of Griswold street, Glendale, made a Christmas visit to Tujunga friends and conveyed the Christmas greetings of Mrs. C. T. Smith of East Maple avenue, Glendale. A Christmas concert was given at the Tujunga Community Methodist church by the choir.

Mr. Caul of Eagle Rock has bought the store formerly owned by Mr. Taylor.

The Tujunga Valley bank has started a plan to encourage school children to save money. It proposes to lend a small sum to a limited number of pupils, who are required to invest the money and pay the loan off with money earned on the investment. Evidence of an attempted burglary was discovered a few days ago at the Farr store, Summit and Walnut. Marks as of a jimmy were discovered on the front door, although the supposed intruders did not gain entrance.

Beginning today, two busses on the Verdugo Hills transportation line will be discontinued. They are the ones leaving Sunland at 10:30 p. m. and leaving Los Angeles at 11:45 p. m., except Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

Big Haul Obtained by Italian Bank Robbers

MILAN, Dec. 30.—Many millions of lire worth of jewels and securities were taken by thieves, who tunneled from a sewer through a steel-lined wall and into the Genoa branch of the Banca Commerciale Italiana, officials admitted today.

Christian Endeavorers Hold Weekly Meeting

"The Old Year and the New" was the topic for discussion at the weekly meeting Sunday night of the senior intermediate Christian Endeavor society of the Presbyterian church. The meeting was led by Misses Bonnie Jean Lockwood and Marjorie Bailey. The address was given by Rev. W. E. Edmonds, who spoke on "Obedience." "A great burden that is on my heart is that so many young folks nowadays are disobedient to their parents," he said. "Your pledges and your vows don't mean anything if at the same time you are grinding out the heart of your father or your mother. The place where your light should shine first of all is in the home. So let it never be said that you are unkind to your parents, and let us strive to make this new year a year of victory, first of all in the home."

Following an enthusiastic program of song and worship, the meeting was turned over to participation. Nearly the entire membership rose to their feet at one time or other to speak, and many resolutions for the new year were expressed. Earlier in the meeting a number of members took part in a little tableau to create enthusiasm for the big attendance contest to be held between the boys and

Another Gas Victim Is Found In Portland

PORTLAND, Or., Dec. 30.—Another victim of apparent accidental asphyxiation by gas was recorded here when the body of Walter J. Rutherford, merchant and lodge man, was found in his home. Investigation by the coroner indicated he had either lighted a gas heater, and the flame had been snuffed out, or that he had turned on the gas and had forgotten to light it. There was no motive for suicide, investigators stated.

Nations Discuss Cost Of Occupational Force

PARIS, Dec. 30.—The question of the cost of the American occupational troops in Germany was discussed today by Premier Herriot, War Minister Nollet, General Guillaumat, commander-in-chief of the German occupational troops, and M. Tirard, Rhineland high commissioner.

During Christmas week the headquarters of the Glendale Welfare Council and Bureau, at 225 East Broadway, presented a busy scene, with Mrs. L. W. Sinclair, secretary; Mrs. E. D. Yard, president, and other council members at work packing boxes of clothing and toys for the less fortunate of Glendale. On Christmas eve the workers were busy until 11 o'clock. There were fifty-five Christmas dinners furnished; toys for children, and Christmas trees.
 The Welfare Council and Bureau has asked The Glendale Evening News to voice thanks to churches, clubs, groups and individuals who in any way assisted in making Christmas a happy holiday for Glendale's needy families.

Driver Hurt In Crash Of Wagon With Truck

Jose Chavero of Los Angeles, is a patient at the Cottage hospital, Burbank, suffering with abrasions and bruises, following an accident at 6:30 o'clock last night at San Fernando road and Raymond avenue, when a wagon he was driving was struck by a milk truck driven by Glen A. Porterfield of Pasadena. Chavero's horse was slightly injured, according to a report filed at Glendale police headquarters.
 Porterfield was not hurt. The wagon was demolished and the truck damaged.

BOMB VICTIM GIVES CLUE IN LETTER

Maimed Lawyer Says He Knows Who Sent Him
Infernal Machine

In a startling interview late yesterday, Ernest M. Torchia, Christmas package bomb victim, told his interrogators he was sure he knew the person who sent the nitro-glycerine infernal machine which exploded in his hands, blowing away one arm, blinding him and tearing open his abdomen. Between gasps of pain and frequent interruptions of rest, Torchia disclosed that the name of the bomber is contained in a letter in his office correspondence file.
 Captain William Bright of the sheriff's homicide squad returned to the Los Angeles office of the maimed lawyer today after checking the latest interview with Tor-chia, in an effort to locate the letter which might bear handwriting similar to that on the bomb package.
 "I have always believed that man would try to get even with me," Torchia gasped in a strained voice. "He was very vindictive when I bested him in a law suit.
 Afterwards I received several threatening letters from him. He is the only man I could logically accuse."

Daughter at Bedside Torchia's daughter, who was injured to some extent when the bomb exploded in her father's hands, was at the bedside while the lawyer gasped his accusation.

Evangelistic Meetings Continue Successful

The evangelistic services being conducted at the First Church of the Nazarene, 417 East Acacia avenue, are proving interesting.
 The meetings started December 10 and have been held each night since. Rev. Fred St. Clair, of Wadley, Ga., is conducting the meetings. A large number of people are reported converted during the campaign. Features of Rev.
 St. Clair's sermons are illustrations. The campaign continues each night this week with services at 7:30 o'clock. A Watch-night service will be held tomorrow night at the church and everyone is invited to attend. Rev. St.
 Clair will preach and special musical selections will be given.

Daily Greeting to News Readers

Too many people live and keep their imagination an enemy. It is always concocting scenes and depicting occurrences that render one dissatisfied with his lot. We may have to work hard, but all the time our imagination is at play, or occupied with scenes of ease, luxury and comfort. This makes the work we have to do much harder. We are pulling against the grain; we are working against our imagination.

MALINGUING CONGRESS

It has often been said that the test of a nation's civilization is in the character of its homes. If that is so, then the United States cannot afford to continue to allow the exploitation of its childhood for gain. If the child labor amendment is not ratified it will be because of ignorance. No one wants to abolish household tasks or vacation time work for children, yet this is the phase of the subject that those who are fighting the amendment make prominent.

Congress is open to criticism most of the time and a great deal of it is just. But if Congress is to be trusted in any matter whatever, there is no reason to suppose that this body will legislate unwisely in the matter of prohibiting child labor. Congress would have no reason whatever to forbid boys to sell newspapers mornings and evenings or to forbid a farmer's children from helping about the farm or in the house. There is no reason to assume that Congress would exercise its powers to prevent a boy doing farm work suited to his years and strength during the summer vacation or a girl from spending the summer months in some employment. If Congress is not to be trusted with this problem it is not to be trusted with any question of any importance to the nation.

"Everybody who looks at the subject of child labor with due regard for the welfare of the nation, of which the people are the most precious resource, knows that continuous, monotonous work in a factory is destructive of childhood, physically and mentally, and produces an ignorant, physically degenerated population," says the Portland Oregonian. "Children need education in order that the United States may have an intelligent population, fit to carry on representative government."

THE ELECTORAL COLLEGE

The possibility that any one candidate would not receive a majority of the votes in the electoral college and the result consequent upon such a contingency caused a lot of us some sleepless nights just prior to the election last November. But when the election was over and the result was made known we drew a breath of relief and proceeded to forget all about the danger that had threatened us.

Senator Hiram Johnson has introduced an amendment to the federal constitution by which a plurality of votes in the electoral college will elect a president and vice president, instead of requiring a majority, as at present.

Some step should be taken to do away with the uncertainty and danger that attended the last election, but many citizens would go a step farther and abolish the electoral college altogether, permitting the voters to cast their ballots directly for the president, the majority in each state determining how the state's vote should be cast. The present method is not only confusing to the voter, but is attended by too much detail and delay. If the matter were left to a vote of the people it is safe to say they would do away with the electoral college by a big majority, for they chafe under the restrictions of the present method. A voter feels a certain pride in casting a ballot for his favorite candidate for president of the United States, and, although he thoroughly understands the system, there is a feeling that he has been cheated when his candidate's name does not appear on the ballot.

Congress should remove the uncertainty from presidential elections, as provided for in Senator Johnson's resolution, but why not go farther and eliminate the electoral college and the unnecessary complications attendant upon its functioning?

SELF-PITY

Two men were discussing a mutual friend who had never been successful at anything. One expressed wonder that anyone could be such a consistent failure, while the other explained the situation in a nutshell, "Oh, he is sorry for himself." The man who is sorry for himself will never go very far in any undertaking. He spends too much time bemoaning his lot and not enough trying to better his condition. He is like one who fails before he makes an attempt because he knows that one so persecuted by fate as he is cannot succeed.

The practical politician has learned that to make a man feel sorry for himself is to win this man's vote. First he takes away his manhood, his power to think for himself, by telling him that his low estate is due to the greed of the rich, the injustice of the laws of the country and the machinations of Wall Street. This takes away all his ambition and renders him useless to himself and all others except the candidate who has emasculated him and for whom he will cast a vote.

Those who try to make us sorry for ourselves are our worst enemies. They play upon that trait of human nature which encourages us to save our faces by placing the blame for our faults and failures on someone or something else.

The young man who starts out to make a success in life should realize that he is "the captain of his soul, the master of his fate," that self-pity and achievement are not compatible.

CLEAR ENUNCIATION

Frederick Ward complains of the growing evil of slurring our words. Writers, actors, public speakers and others who have conceived a fondness for the language and who have developed a sense of appreciation for its beauties naturally resent this careless habit of speaking, so thinks this veteran actor. But it is suggested that the language was made for man and not man for the language, and when greater convenience or beauty is found in changing the form or sound of a word, man is going to make the change. And who is to say how much of this habit is evil and how much good, since the language as we speak it today in its purest form is the result of many years of this practice of slurring? Where are we to draw the line? When the laborer says he is "goin' to work," we shudder, but when the poet sings, "Neath the green boughs," or "O'er the sea," we tremble with delight. The workman slurs, the poet elides.

It is not to be denied that we are careless in the use of our language, but what are we to do? In this fast age, if we stop to enunciate clearly without slurring or elision, we find that our friends have gone on about their own affairs, not caring to take the time to hear what we have to say.

For clear, deep thinking, someone suggests getting into a hot bath. That's when most of us do our heavy thinking—when we're in hot water.

DON'T CHEER YET!

Backbone and Wishbone

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Too many people, said somebody, have their wishbone where their backbone ought to be. In other words, they go through life continually wishing for great things, but have not the backbone to secure those great things.

Nothing valuable can be secured as a rule, in a mere flush of enthusiasm. It takes patience, forbearance and will power, to accomplish what we want.

Many a young person, for instance, has gone to the city with the intention to study art or music or some such thing. And things have not broken right for them and they have found impediments and obstacles and have become discouraged. They have not enough backbone to counter-balance their wishbone.

The prizes of this life go, as a rule, to those who are able to stick.

This is true in business. The shores of the business stream are littered with the wrecks of those who have come to grief. They were not able to stick or were not intelligent enough to make provision for sticking. The first great storm that arose was fatal to them.

Those who have succeeded in business, as a rule, are those who have doggedly stuck to their task until by and by fortune smiled upon them.

Fortune is a peculiar lass. Toward those who are afraid of her she is cruel. Those who flout her and kick her and disregard her she will finally come to fawn upon.

It is well to have great desires and great ambitions, but unless this is balanced by great staying powers, one is apt to be like a rocket—up in a flare of glory and down like a stick.

In all human relations no one finds people exactly as he wants them. We must trim our wishes to suit the actualities. We must come down from the ideals that we have pictured to ourselves to the realities as they are.

This is oftentimes a slow and difficult progress, for one of the hardest things to do is to adapt our wishes to things as we find them.

Who's Who

Rear Admiral Josiah McKean, now commandant of the Mare Island navy yard, has been selected to command America's scouting fleet, with the rank of vice-admiral.

He will succeed Vice-Admiral Newton A. McCully, who has been designated to proceed to Brazil and become head of the United States naval commission at Rio de Janeiro.

Admiral McKean was appointed commandant at Mare Island in 1921. He served as assistant chief of naval operations in 1919 and later commanded battleship division No. 6 of the old Pacific fleet.

The birthplace of Rear Admiral McKean was Mt. Hope, Ohio, and he was born on May 30, 1864. He was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1884 and took his LL.B. degree at the University of Michigan in 1888. His marriage to Miss Julie Hawthurst of New York City took place in 1901. His first promotion was to assistant engineer in 1889, and he was transferred to the line as lieutenant in 1899. McKean was made temporary rear admiral in 1918 and permanent in 1920. He served on the Charleston during the Spanish-American war, and from February 15, 1918, to September of that year he commanded the Arizona.

WILLIAM BAKER ASSUMES CHARGE

Newly Elected President of Club Is Installed at Meeting Today

William Baker, newly-elected president of the Exchange club, took office today at the meeting held at the Masonic temple. He succeeds R. E. Johnston, who headed the club during 1924. Outgoing officers and directors and new officers and directors spoke, reviewing the activities of the past year and the outlook for 1925.

Outgoing officers and directors are: R. E. Johnston, D. Ripley Jackson, George Whitaker, W. H. Daniel, George Thomas, Ralph Pierce and W. C. Waring. New officers and directors are: William Baker, C. M. Christy, A. J. Lockwood, George Hallett, Dr. George Campbell, W. Claire Ans-pach, C. H. Roubush, J. C. May and C. C. Coglein.

Football Banquet
President Johnston announced the installation ceremonies and annual banquet to be held by the Long Beach club next Monday night. Plans for the football banquet on January 6 were discussed by President Johnston and D. Ripley Jackson.

Rev. W. E. Edmonds, pastor of the Glendale Presbyterian church and president of the Ministerial association, was the speaker of the day. Rev. Edmonds stressed the need of righteousness in business life. He said the need of organization in all lines, coupled with character. At the conclusion of his talk he distributed pocket-pieces designed by the late John Wanamaker, and which were received recently from his vault.

ings being for the purpose of closer co-operation in community music and drama movements in Southern California. The afternoon of the second day will be devoted to reports and plans for the wide-spread movement, the Elsteddfod, in which Glendale is playing a leading part.

The Friday program will include hourly discussions during the afternoon, followed by a dinner in the Los Angeles City club, 833 South Spring street. Ben F. Pearson, president of the Civic Music and Art association, who has just returned from Europe, will be the honor guest of the dinner. Mr. Pearson is also a leader in the Elsteddfod.

Tucker to Preside
On Saturday morning, municipal support of music will be considered, with R. Ernest Tucker, Glendale superintendent of recreation, presiding. Among other gatherings to follow will be a business meeting of the general Elsteddfod committee of Southern California at 12:15 o'clock and a general session at 2 o'clock. Various other section meetings are scheduled and the time and place of each may be secured from Mr. Tucker by interested persons wishing to attend. The public is invited to the meetings, though reservations must be made in advance for the dinner and for the luncheons.

Among Glendale residents who have already made reservations for the dinner for Mr. Pearson are the following-named: Mr. and Mrs. George J. Lyons, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Baird, Mr. and Mrs. J. Arthur Myers and Mr. and Mrs. R. Ernest Tucker. As Mr. Lyons is the new head of the Glendale Community Service, which is sponsoring the Elsteddfod movement here, and Mr. Baird is the chairman of the Community Service Elsteddfod committee, and Mr. Myers an active worker for this movement in his position as director of the Symphony orchestra and Choral club, it is expected they will attend several sessions.

of the California legislature which open January 5. Representative Weller told the writer today that he is preparing a resolution to be presented by Assemblyman Willard A. Badham of Los Angeles, who is first on the roll call, for the ratification of the child labor amendment to the United States constitution. It will be known as the Badham-Weller resolution.

The local assemblyman also will sponsor a bill limiting nominations at the primary to one party only, which would do away with politicians wearing the Jacob's coat of Republican, Democratic, Prohibition and Socialist endorsements, and holding them to the one party with which they affiliate.

One Big Issue
Reapportionment will be the one big issue of the Southland's delegates, Attorney Weller believes, and Senator A. Burlingame Johnson, Pasadena resident, who represents this Thirty-sixth senatorial district, already is champion of that cause. Reapportionment and reforestation are the two big issues in the senator's program.

Speaker Frank Merriam of Long Beach assured the writer that he confidently expects to preside over the lower house, although Attorney Albert Renshine of San Francisco is mentioned in dispatches as being favored by some of the northern delegates. If promises mean anything, Mr. Merriam already has the gavel.

Council Denies All Protests on Sycamore

ment get any refund from the board of supervisors? Virgil B. Stone, city manager—The flood control bonds were voted on a general plan approved by the supervisors. There would be no way of paying property owners back their assessment costs out of flood control money. I will say, however, that if the supervisors see fit to go ahead with their plans for a diversion tunnel, the city of Glendale will start proceedings to run a storm drain down to the cemetery. The assessment area for this district would be the drainage area.

"Butted In," Claim
Mr. Belcher—The plans of the board of supervisors would have gone ahead all right if the Chamber of Commerce and city officials hadn't butted in.

Councilman S. A. Davis—That's not so! The city officials didn't butt in this thing.
Mr. Brown—Mr. Belcher fought that tunnel right from the start. If anyone blocked it, he did.

Mr. Belcher—That's not so—Mayor Spencer Robinson at this point had to call for order.

Offers Explanation
At the request of property owners, John F. Johannsen, city engineer, explained how the assessment was made.

"The total cost was divided," he said, "60 per cent being paid by the frontage and 40 per cent being paid by the district. The frontage was considered to be the depth of an ordinary lot, 150 feet deep. On this basis the average assessment would be $7 per front foot on a 50x150-foot lot. The area not directly on Sycamore Canyon road was divided into four zones: the first zone extending from Adams street on the east to Porter Street on the west, and being assessed $130 an acre; the next zone was assessed $72 an acre, the next $43, and the last zone only $5 an acre."

It was after Mr. Johannsen had explained the assessment to the general satisfaction of the council, as indicated by many expressions from property owners, that the vote was taken denying all protests and confirming the assessment roll.

Gas Victims' Funeral Not Yet Arranged

Funeral arrangements have not yet been made for Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Carson of 137 South Pacific avenue, gas victims, who were found dead in their home yesterday, with the gas heater burning. The bodies are being held at the Kiefer & Everick undertaking parlors, pending the arrival from San Diego of a brother of Mr. Carson.

Mr. Carson had been employed at the Packer Motor Car Co., as head bookkeeper, since 1921. The bodies were discovered by H. G. Peters, an employee of that firm, who went to the house to find out why Mr. Carson had not come to the office that day. He had gone home early on Saturday, saying that his wife was ill. Both were past 50 years of age.

DE MILLE STARTS TRIP TO EUROPE

Movie Man Seeks Flashes
For New Film; Wampas
Ball February 5

By MARIAN MARSHALL
For Southland News Service
HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 30.—Film fan lore is shifting scenes today.
Fast-moving action is typified by Cecil B. DeMille, who left yesterday en route to New York and European capitals, where he is going to obtain flashes for a new film.
Here in Hollywood the colony is discussing the Wampas ball February 5 at the Ambassador, when the "baby stars of 1925" will make their debut. In New York the fans are applauding to the echo Betty Bronson, who is appearing in person with "Peter Pan."

From Paris Carmel Myers broadcasts the style hint: "You are not dressed with less than three dozen buttons. They're all over everything a woman wears,"
she writes, failing to say anything in her letters about her rumored engagement to Baron Scharnberg,
an Austrian nobleman.
Has New Beverage
And to add nerve to New Year festivities—perhaps to give courage to Jack Dempsey—Estelle Taylor is serving a brand new beverage to her Hollywood friends, her publicity representatives. It is Paraguayan tea, with a taste like wine and a stimulating effect that isn't intoxicating.
And from Paris, New York and the "home town" studios comes word of New Year's parties in which the stars will shine. Oh, yes, the moon, too!

THIS FOR SCOFFLAWS
SANTA ANA, Dec. 30.—Justice of the Peace Kenneth Morrison believes the consumer of bootleg liquor shares guilt with the seller and he has announced that he will inflict the same penalties on both in future cases coming before his court.

WHY PICK ON HOTELS?

SANTA ANA, Dec. 30.—Hotels, recognized as the "Main street" of America, through whose lobbies the public meanders without rhyme or reason, now are serving as information bureaus and M. J.
Cahill, local host, reports his clerks are telling the time of day to telephone calls.

NEW POINT OF LAW

SANTA ANA, Dec. 30.—Attorneys for Frank Moore, resident of Huntington Beach, recently arrested in liquor raids in this county, claim they have found a California supreme court decision absolving their client who acted merely as an agent for dry detectives in procuring bootleg booze.
His trial will arouse great interest, it is predicted.

ISLAND NEEDS TREES

BALBOA, Dec. 30.—The Women's Civic league is appealing to the chamber of commerce and other organizations to encourage the growth of more trees on this island resort. But soil experts find trees will not grow in the sand infiltrated with brackish water. "My kingdom for a tree," Joseph Beek, harbormaster, ferry owner and principal property owner, might well sing.

BANANA TREES FREEZE

SANTA BARBARA, Dec. 30.—
Sub-tropical horticulturists here are singing the sweet refrain,
"Yes, we have no bananas," the several trees wilting in the wintry blast of the Christmas holiday.
"Overcoats" have been provided the surviving trees.

AN ORIGINAL RESTAURANT

SANTA BARBARA, Dec. 30.—
"If you can cut your steak, don't bend it out of shape. We can sell it again. If you are sane and sensible this is no place for you," are excerpts from advertising by the only second rate restaurant in Santa Barbara. The menu lists cereals: "Any brand of horse-feed and very thin cream, 15 cents."

JUDGE SUES FOR PAY

OXNARD, Dec. 30.—Justice of the Peace C. J. Elliott, who serves as a special right-of-way man for the California highway commission, is suing for his judicial salary, his pay warrants having been held up by the county treasurer on the charge the judge is holding two official jobs which is prohibited by law. The test suit has untried legal angles.

FORM OFFICERS CLUB

RIVERSIDE, Dec. 30.—Major
R. W. Ashbrook of the high school
R. O. T. C. is forming a reserve officers' club which will have quarters at March field and engage in pistol practice and other army avocations. San Bernardino and Riverside county officers are invited to join.

Polish Counterfeiter

Fleeces Immigrants

PARIS, Dec. 30.—South Americans arriving aboard the steamship Lucretia discovered today they had been made victims of the Polish counterfeiter, Jelka Goldman, in changing French francs for supposed $50 bills on board ship. The bills had been raised from smaller denominations.

New Yorker Mentioned

As Commerce Executive

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.— President Coolidge today sent to the Senate for confirmation the name of John Matthews, Jr., of New York, to be assistant director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce of the depart-

FROM EAGLE ROCK

EAGLE ROCK, Dec. 30.—M.
George, transportation manager of a Los Angeles paper, will erect one of the largest and costliest houses in this section. He has chosen the heights of Dahlia drive and will spend $20,000 on the structure, according to plans submitted to the building department.

The house will be of stucco and of Italian villa style, three stories high. There will be nine rooms, laid out with a view to comfort as well as artistic effect. The lot is large, 100x226 feet, and the grounds surrounding the building are to be planted with elaborate shrubbery, trees and flowers.

Grading has already been started and building will commence immediately after the new year.
Mr. W. L. Skidmore of Lissner building, Los Angeles, is the architect.

"Uncle Tom" McCarey and R.
L. McNitt, well known in local sport circles, are organizing a boxing club near Compton. It is reported they have secured a ten-year lease on a twenty-acre plot of ground near Compton, where a huge boxing arena will be built,
that will seat 40,000 people. Mr.
McNitt is attorney for the promoter and, it is understood, will

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—The highest honors ever given American army officers in peace times will be awarded the around-the-world flyers, under recommendations made to President Coolidge today by Secretary of War Weeks.
Recommendations, which were drawn up by the general staff on request of President Coolidge, provide for awarding of distinguished service medals to all six of the flyers and their advancement on the promotion list more than has ever before been given.

Diet And Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

More On Gas Poisoning
Mr. B.—The fatalities from gas poisoning continue to be appallingly high. Let me warn you again if you are using gas in your home to exercise all precautions to protect yourself.

The bureau of mines in Washington recently declared that every gas burning heater should bear upon it a stamp which kind of gas fuel it is fitted for. It also said: "Many of the heaters sold are recommended for use without due connections, but to use them as recommended would be decidedly dangerous. Flues on radiant heaters are always desirable. The fact that a room is of large capacity does not insure that all natural gas heaters can be safely used in such a room unless the heater is properly connected to a flue."

Local heaters in the rooms should be avoided if possible. The burning of gas for heating should be entirely outside of the room, in a steam or hot water plant preferably, or in the best kind of furnace for the next choice. If you do have to have a local heater for the room be sure you use the fuel that the heater calls for. Be sure that your flues and all your connections are perfect.

In some cities and towns there are ordinances prohibiting installation of heaters without vents or flues. This should be universal. In Los Angeles, after some gas fatalities, the district attorney stated that he intends to prosecute a landlord if a person dies in an unventilated room where a gas heater is burning.

Be careful not to leave anything boiling on a gas stove that can boil over and put out the flame. Recently in New York a young son, thinking to be helpful, got up early and put the coffee on the stove while the family was asleep. The coffee boiled over, putting out the gas flame, and the whole family was asphyxiated.

Stye (Hordeolum)
A. Z.—Styes are infections of the sebaceous glands (oil glands) connected with the eyelashes, and the infection is caused by the same family of germs that will cause boils and pimples elsewhere. The family name is Staphylococcus. There are several things that will give the Staphylococcus clan the opportunity to take up their family residence on the eyelid. There is local lowered resistance due to eye strain and inflammation of the lids (see your oculist), general lowered resistance due to

Mabel—When there is a tendency for the feet to have an odor you can counteract it by scrubbing them every night with hot water and an antiseptic soap, such as one in which there is a little salicylic acid. Rinse in cool water and then very cold water and dust the soles of the feet with a powder in which there is a small amount of salicylic acid. Any druggist will make up a powder of this kind for you by adding the antiseptic to the ordinary talcum powders.

E. E. D., Mary Ellen—An exercise for reducing the bust is as follows: Place hands on hips with fingers forward and thumbs to the back; without moving the hands apart, bring the elbows as far forward as possible, hold the position for an instant while all the muscles of arms and shoulders are tensed. Repeat the exercise by aiming to bring the elbows back as far as possible without moving the position of the hands, hold and tense all muscles of chest and arms. Repeat the different positions until muscles have been fully exercised.

A Reader—The red mark left from the cut will bleach off in a few weeks if you do not use anything on it but warm water and a fine soap or olive oil.

In massaging the lines under the eyes the motions are circular, going around the eyes in each direction, and then upward and outward from the nose to the temples. The upward motion tends to lift all facial muscles, especially those of the cheeks, from the corners of the mouth.

A Daily Reader, G. F. J.—Try massaging a finer oil into your scalp than the one you have been using. It is possible to give the scalp an oil treatment and get very little of the oil through the hair. To do this you part the hair frequently and massage along the

Entertain Club

Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Abbey of 1221 North Central avenue were hosts to members and guests of the Monday Afternoon Bridge club last night when the members entertained their husbands and friends at a Christmas party. Decorations in the Abbey home were suggestive of the holiday season, a Christmas tree and bouquets of buttonhole chrysanthemums being used as decorative features. Four tables of bridge were in play during the evening, first prizes being awarded to Mrs. F. G. Abbey and H. A. Thimm and the second prizes going to Mrs. I. D. Vinton of Hollywood and Emil Cizek. Buffet luncheon was served later in the evening. Those attending the party were Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Thimm, Mr. and Mrs. Homer D. Lockwood, Mrs. Mary Griggs, J. V. McElwee, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Maxwell, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Vinton of Hollywood, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Cizek, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Dodds and Mr. and Mrs. Abbey. The next meeting of the club will be held January 12, in the home of Mrs. Emil Cizek, 711 East Elk street.

Announcement

The engagement of Miss Aldeane Gilles, formerly of Glendale, now of Los Angeles, and Paul Fisher of Los Angeles, was announced at a recent social affair given by Miss Mildred Sooy at her home, 658 West California avenue. Miss Gilles graduated from Glendale high school in June, 1924, and those invited to her betrothal party were a group of schoolgirl friends. Announcement was made when the company was seated around the luncheon table. A red and white color scheme was used in the luncheon appointments. Hidden in the heart of a red rose centerpiece were tiny envelopes, holding cards telling of the engagement. After luncheon five-hundred was played. No date has been set for the wedding.

Hosts at Bridge

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Everett of 532 Spencer place entertained a company of relatives and friends last night at a bridge party. Mrs. Everett was assisted by her sister, Miss Linda Goertz. Three tables of bridge were arranged during the evening and when scores were added Miss Linda Goertz and H. H. Wiebe won first prizes. Piano was given by Mrs. H. H. Wiebe and Miss Hulda Isaac. Refreshments were served as a later feature at the card tables. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Wiebe, Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Goertz, Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Friesen, Misses Linda and Freda Goertz, Hulda Isaac and Edna Nickel.

Joint Hostesses

Mrs. M. E. Fritz and Mrs. Emily McCallister of 301 North Kenwood street were joint hostesses at a delightful dinner party Sunday night. A cut glass bowl filled with a variety of choice winter fruit formed an attractive centerpiece for the table. Covers were laid for Miss Julia Penfield of Lincoln, N. M.; Miss Esther Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Burdette O. Rockhold, Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Vorker and family, Mrs. Bessie Chesler and son Joseph, and the hostesses.

A Bride: My pie crust is always soggy when I make a coconut custard pie. What is the trouble?

Answer: I imagine you are not baking the pie correctly. All pies with an egg filling should be baked as follows: Slip it into a hot oven and let it bake for perhaps ten minutes, then gradually reduce the oven heat to "medium" and let it continue to bake—forty minutes in all. That first short period in a hot oven sets the crust. The remainder of the baking, at moderate heat, allows all to cook without getting the filling so hot that it boils. If an egg filling is allowed to boil in a pie it will "weh" thereby spoiling the pie.

Mrs. H. B. and "Mrs. So and So": "Please tell me how to remove rust from metal."
Answer: You did not tell me the kind of metal, Reader Friends! Therefore I shall have to "cover" several kinds. Iron and Steel: Soak small objects in kerosene for several days and then smooth with steel wool or emery paper. Large surfaces such as a stove top may be rubbed with kerosene (when the fire is out, of course) and then with steel wool which is moistened with linseed oil; in extreme cases the oiled steel wool may be dipped in powdered pumice stone. Nickel: Cover the rust spot with lard and let stand several days, then rub with a wool cloth wrung out of hot water and moistened with either kerosene or ammonia. ### Dancing Hostess

Miss Roberta Cullen entertained a large company of her high school friends Saturday night with a dancing party at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Cullen, 520 North Maryland avenue. The rooms of the Cullen home were beautifully decorated with Christmas colors, the Christmas tree being a feature. Streamers of fancy Christmas paper were draped from the chandeliers to the corners of the room and the shades were draped with red Christmas paper. Dancing was enjoyed throughout the evening and later when the prize trot was danced, Miss Edna Stearman and Darrell Elliott were awarded prizes. Later in the evening buffet refreshments were served by Mrs. Cullen with the assistance of Mrs. Ed Elliott. Attending the party were: Misses Mary Edith Davis, Marcella Meinberger, Jane Richardson, Lillian Bokken, Dorothy Prickett, Martha Weldon, Helen White, Edna Stearman, Mary Blue, Grace McCuskey, Vivian Nay, Barbara Blake, Evelyn Curran and Lois Emerick; Howard Elliott, Archie Neel, Dante La Franchi, Dick Brown, William Felten, Arthur Cornelius, Lee Martinez, Darrell Elliott, Marion Morrison, Ralph McKles, Wallace Trau, Wilson Whiteley, George Newland, Paul Huston, Robert Bradbury, Robert Howard, Reed Stearman, John Lovell and Elmer Muff.

New Year's Dance

Plans for the New Year's eve dance, which will be held tomorrow night at the Knights of Columbus clubhouse, 330 East Lomita avenue, have been completed. The dance is being given under the auspices of the bowling league of the Glendale council, No. 1920, Knight of Columbus, and G. H. Killinger has charge of arrangements for the dance. Christmas decorations have been used to decorate the clubhouse. Music will be furnished by a seven-piece orchestra from Los Angeles, and a feature of the evening will be a prize waitz.

Chicken Dinner

A chicken dinner last night at the Edward Rehberg home, 620 North Adams street, entertained a company of relatives and also celebrated the eighth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Rehberg. After the dinner during the informal social evening the hosts were presented with a basket of flowers, and a panel mirror for their new home. Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Rehberg, of San Diego; Mr. and Mrs. J. De Laney, Mr. and Mrs. John Rehberg, James Whitely, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rehberg and family of Glendale.

Hold Candy Sale

Grand View Girl Reserves are to hold a candy sale from 3 to 6 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, at the Raymond market, corner of Raymond avenue and San Fernando road. Plans for the sale were made at the meeting Saturday at the home of the president, Marion Mair, 2004 Glenwood road. The next meeting will be with Virginia Ogle at her home, 1062 Raymond avenue. The subject for discussion will be community service.

LEG MAKES HAND

By a very unusual operation surgeons at Johns Hopkins hospital have grown a new hand on Elizabeth Mattiesen, 14 years old, by utilizing the flesh of her leg. The girl had been badly burned by falling against a hot stove when learning to walk. The hand just regrown for years did not respond to treatment and threatened to become a closed fist. The surgeons are hopeful the operation will be permanently successful, and may even allow the girl to pursue her ambition to play the piano.

CHARLES A. HOLCOMB

The body of Charles A. Holcomb, father of A. C. Holcomb of 1154 Viola avenue, whose death occurred last week at his home in San Luis Obispo, was brought to Glendale for interment in Grand View Memorial park. Mr. Holcomb was 65 years of age at the time of his death. He had been in ill health for some time. Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Effie Holcomb; two daughters, Mrs. E. E. Fournier of San Francisco and Mrs. George Brown of San Luis Obispo, and three sons, J. B. Holcomb of San Luis Obispo, A. C. Holcomb of Glendale and Glen I. Holcomb of Los Angeles. Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon in San Luis Obispo.

Eggs from the United States were shipped to thirty-three countries within the last year.

The Wrath To Come

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM, Copyright 1924

CHAPTER VII
"Absolutely certain," was the confident reply. "The discourse to you, sir, can only be explained by Mr. Marsham's breakdown in health."

"It is a very serious event," was the grave acknowledgment. "The New York was the only great American paper—a paper which, when things really mattered, brushed aside minor issues and preached the gospel of real things. One of the editors used to be here every week. I always treated him with the utmost confidence."

"Have you ever met Cornelius Blunn, sir?" Grant enquired.
"Once only. A genial, simple fellow he seemed, for such a master of industry. I could scarcely believe that I was talking to the owner of so many gigantic commercial undertakings."

"He is outwardly the most simple and good-natured, and inwardly the most inscrutable person I ever came across," Grant confided. "There is a rumor about him that he carries wherever he goes, night and day, locked and padlocked in a little casket of gold, a letter written by his father on his deathbed."

"How romantic!" one of the women murmured.

"Has any one any idea as to its contents?" some one else asked.

Grant shook his head.

"I was once told," he said, "that if one could read that letter one could read the riddle of Blunn's life. I have formed my own idea about it."

"A secret?" his hostess enquired.

"Not amongst us," Grant replied. "I believe that it is an injunction from Blunn senior—who died, they say, of a broken heart, some years after the signing of the Peace of Versailles—to his son to devote his life towards avenging Germany's humiliation. Personally, I believe that with that end in view he is deliberately working to upset the peace of the world."

Grant's pronouncement was received, as he had expected, with disfavor. His host merely smiled. The senator from the west, who had been waiting impatiently for an opportunity to join in the conversation, cleared his throat and leaned a little forward.

"Sir," he said, "I guess every man in this country is free to express his opinions. Those may be yours, but I'd like just to tell you how the people down in my state look upon such talk. They say that trouble is made by talking about it, that most of the wars of the world have come about through newspaper discussion in advance and mischievous people going about putting belligerent thoughts into the minds of peaceful people. If I heard you, sir, make such a statement as you have just made on a public platform, I should conceive it to be my duty to use every gift of oratory with which I have been endowed to demonstrate to your audience the futility, the absurdity, and the immorality of such a statement. Hearing it under this roof, sir, I say no more than this. War and the desire for war is dead amongst the civilized nations of the world. We are every one of us grappling hard with social and economic problems of far greater consequence. The whimper of a person like Cornelius Blunn, for all his millions, is less than the voice crying in the wilderness, when one considers the majesty and colossal power of the chief nation against whom that voiced is raised."

Grant inclined his head courteously. The bombast of the senator's words had appealed slightly to the sense of humor of most of them. Yet Grant was perfectly aware that the man had spoken the truth when he declared that he was voicing the views of the people of his state. It was a representative expression of opinion. He could even see a qualified but vital assent to it in the faces of most of the little party. His host applied the closure.

"Well," he said, "we must not drift into too serious argument. We shall all have an opportunity of expressing our views presently upon this subject."

"In the meantime, sir," Grant begged, "might I ask Mr. Senator Ross one question?"

"By all means," was the prompt assent.

"Would you, sir," Grant went on, turning towards the senator, "vote for the United States accepting the invitation of the Pact of Nations to join them?"

"I should not," was the decided reply. "The Pact of Nations may have need of the United States. The United States has no need of the Pact. As a citizen of the United States I am prouder of the present isolated attitude of my country than I am,

THE GATEWAY

With a wealth of screen experience back of him, and an exceptional popularity everywhere in the country, Clarence Burton in one of his strongest "heavy" roles in "The Mine With the Iron Door," is announced as the feature attraction at the Gateway theatre for the last times today.

"The Mine With the Iron Door" is a Sol Lesser adaptation of Harold Bell Wright's newest and greatest novel, which, since its publication, has sold into a total of more than two million copies. It is directed by Sam Wood, who has brought out all the strength in this Clarence Burton role.

Burton was born in Windsor, Mo., and has been showing "em" ever since. Following a stage career of five years he went into pictures, and has had important character parts in such feature successes as "Miss Lulu Bett," "The Law and the Woman," "One Glorious Day," "Her Husband's Trademark," "The Man Unconquerable," "Adam's Rib," "Mr. Billings Spends His Dime," "Garison's Finish," and "Beautiful, but Damned."

even, of her undoubted supremacy in every field of economics and civilization."

"The senator's sonorous statement was the signal for the breaking up of the little party. Grant was accompanied to the door by one of the secretaries with whom he had previous acquaintance.

"The old type remains, I see," the former remarked, with a smile.

"It is the type beloved of the semi-professional politician," the young man declared. "We have one of them to lunch every week. The chief can't stand them in larger doses. But you know they have an enormous backing."

Grant felt the warning behind his friend's words, as he walked slowly back towards the club where he was staying. It was the West, the big, brawny West, with its polyglot population and immense material prosperity, which he chiefly feared.

Grant left Washington with a curious mixture of impressions. He had spent a fortnight in the political capital of his country and yet he came away with a strange conviction that he had been somewhere on the edge of real things, that he had talked of vital events with men whose interest in them was chiefly academic. Washington might be the

DOBINSON PLAYERS

"I Love You," which will open for its second week at the Tuesday afternoon club theatre tomorrow night, was greeted last week with enthusiasm by Glendale theatre-goers and Mrs. Florence Dobinson, manager of the Dobinson Players, urges those who wish to see the play to secure their tickets well in advance. The curtain rises nightly at 8:15 o'clock.

The play "I Love You" is by William Le Baron and tells the story of a wealthy man, weary of the conventional, who horrifies the guests with the statement that there is no such thing as real love, and makes a wager with one of them that under the right environment any two people can be made to fall in love. In the working out of the scheme is a series of convulsing situations.

Jimmie Farnsworth, played by Joseph McManus, the featured player, is one of the funniest characters ever seen on the stage. His sofa scene with Louise is a scream. William H. Stephens as Brooks, the butler, whose encyclopaedic mind is a source of bewilderment to the others, is a treat.

furnace, but impulse took him where the fuel lay. He spent four days in Chicago. He went on to St. Louis and Minneapolis. Then he crossed the continent to Boston, where he breathed an entirely different atmosphere. The editors of two great newspapers believed in him and were ready to preach his doctrine. Nevertheless, when, after six weeks' absence, he found himself back in New York, it was with a feeling rather of discomfiture than of self-satisfaction that he viewed his progress. The magnificent self-assurance of his country seemed impregnable. Even where he had been listened to most kindly he felt that he was receiving the indulgence accorded to a crank.

Uncle Wiggly

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGLY AND JOHNNIE'S SURPRISE

Uncle Wiggly hopped out of his stump bungalow one morning and skipped over the fields toward the hollow tree where the Bushy-tail family of squirrels lived. Johnnie Bushytail was out in front, tossing snowballs up in the air.

"Oh, Uncle Wiggly!" chattered the squirrel boy, as soon as he saw the rabbit gentleman. "You're going adventuring, aren't you? May I come with you? I'd just love to have an adventure!"

"Well, I'm going to look for adventures, Johnny," spoke Mr. Longears, "though I don't always find them. However, come along, if you wish. But what about your brother, Billie?"

"Oh, mother has taken him downtown to the six and seven-cent store," answered Johnnie. "Somebody gave Johnnie a seven-cent pair of rubber boots for Christmas and they're too small, so mother's taking him down to change them. I'm all alone, and I'd love to go adventuring with you."

"Come along, then!" cried Uncle Wiggly, with a jolly twinkle of his pink nose. Together the rabbit gentleman and the little squirrel boy hopped over the fields and toward the woods until they came to a poor little house made of pieces of bark tied around a pile of cornstalks.

"Oh, what a queer house!" chattered Johnnie. "I wonder if anyone lives in there?"

Just then a poor little mouse lady thrust her head out of the poor little house and squeaked: "Yes, someone lives here. I live here all alone, and I am cold and have nothing to eat."

"Didn't Santa Claus bring you anything?" asked Johnnie. "But no, I guess he couldn't, 'cause you haven't any chimney on your house," went on the squirrel boy.

"Small need have I for a chimney, when we have no fire," squeaked the poor old little mouse lady. "And Santa Claus didn't come near me."

"That's too bad!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggly, twinking his pink nose very fast. "We must do something to help this poor mouse, Johnnie, my boy," spoke the rabbit gentleman.

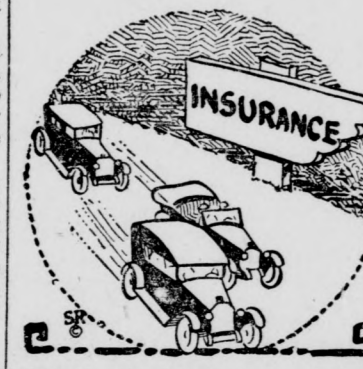

"Yes, indeed!" chattered the squirrel chap. And just then he had quite a surprise. For, looking in a hollow tree, near the bark and cornstalk house of the mouse lady, Johnnie saw that the hole in the tree was filled with jolly good nuts.

"Oh, look!" chattered the surprised squirrel boy. "Look at all these nuts! Some other squirrel must have gathered them and left them here. They have forgotten all about them."

"So they have," agreed Uncle Wiggly. "Why, Mrs. Mouse, these nuts will be just the thing for you. Hurry, Johnnie, and carry the nuts to the mouse lady's house."

And when the squirrel and rabbit had carried the nuts to Mrs. Mouse, she and Johnnie gnawed off the hard shells. The soft, inside meat of the nut the mouse lady ate, then she was no longer hungry. Then Uncle Wiggly found an old piece of stovepipe and made a chimney in the bark and cornstalk house. He found an old tin can for a stove and in this stove he made a fire of the nut shells.

COACHES PROPOSE FOUR NEW RULES

Kick-Off From 40-Yard Line
Recommended As Mentors
Gather For Meet

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—Four new rules have been approved for recommendation to the football rules committee of America after the football coaches got underway in their annual business meeting here late yesterday. The discussion is continuing with the probability of other rules changes being approved for suggestion to the rules committee. The changes proposed were:

- 1—Defensive offside shall be penalized five yards, but the downs remain the same.
- 2—The kickoff shall be made from the kicking side's 40-yard line instead of from mid-field as heretofore. A tee not higher than four inches will be permitted.
- 3—The head linesman shall have the responsibility of watching for rushing of the kicker.
- 4—That a kick blocked behind the line of scrimmage goes as a first down to the side recovering it; that in the case where a kick is partially blocked and the ball crosses the scrimmage line it be treated the same as it would in case the ball had not been touched by anyone.

The latter is in contrast to the present rule. The present rule reads that if the ball is blocked by a player not of the side making a free ball and therefore can be recovered by the kicker's side. Under the recommendation the fact that a ball crosses a line of scrimmage eliminates the on-side play that was made by the player from the side not making the kick, putting the ball on-side by touching it.

Retain Fumble Rule
An attempt was made to include a recommendation that a fumbled ball belonged to the man recovering it, but if it touched the ground before he recovered it, that no run was allowed. This was voted down without discussion, the feeling being that such a rule would rob the game of a very important play, many games having been won and lost during the last season by recovered fumbles.

The recommendations were made by a committee headed by Hugo Berdick, formerly big league baseball manager and present head coach at Pennsylvania State college. The four recommendations were finally put through after Dr. Spears of West Virginia had written an amendment. The report of the committee was that blocked kicks recovered by the kicking side would not constitute a first down unless recovered beyond a point marked by the forward side line stake.

Zupke Elected
Robert Zupke of Illinois was elected president for the coming year.

Alonso Stagg, veteran coach of the University of Chicago discussed the profession of coaching and gave advice to young coaches. "We should do all in our power to make our positions secure," he said.

JOHN B. FOSTER'S VIEWS

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—Cap Neal, who pilots the business of the Louisville club of the American association, had two purposes in mind when he arranged to train the team next spring in Mobile. One was to get into a warmer climate than that of Kentucky, where the Colonels have trained in past years. The other was to get into the channel of baseball traffic moving to and fro in the south in the spring time and to find more exhibition games of importance than the team has had in recent years.

Cap Neal has a quiet little strain of confidence running through him that his boys have a chance to win the pennant in 1925. While he was in the east during the major league meetings he picked up some players who will make Louisville look much better than it did last summer—and there was one time last summer when Louisville looked like a possible winner.

Moreover, Neal knows that in Joe McCarthy he has about as good a manager as there is in baseball and other folks are beginning to find it out. Some day Louisville will be losing its manager to a bigger league.

Cotton of the Cubs has been secured to play first for Louisville next season and Bradshaw of the Giants will go to Louisville to help prop up the pitching staff. Bradshaw figured in the deal by which the Giants got Dean.

Louisville figures that it will be stronger at third base the coming season, and with the other changes made believes it will be able to win five or ten more games than in 1924. With the association running another race as close as that of last season, five more games would make Louisville a winner.

Indianapolis is figured upon as one of the strong contenders that Louisville will have to beat out for the championship. Indianapolis will train again at Plant City, Florida, as it did last season.

Toledo, another American association city that is expected to be in the running, will train at Deland, Florida. Toledo has been strengthened for 1925.

Of the other clubs in the league, Milwaukee will train for 1925, at Sanford, Florida, and Columbus probably at Miami. Kansas City will go back to California and Minneapolis probably to San Antonio, Texas. St. Paul very likely will seek a southwestern training camp. This latter club, by the way, may prove to be a surprise in 1925, just as it was in 1924, when it won the championship.

Houses in Budapest are being made of the thin sheet metal that has been used for toy houses.

said, "Problems lending insecurity to the profession were the growth of gambling, the tremendous growth in the popularity of football and the attempts at interference with the coach by college organizations."

SPORTDOM ALL OVER

By JOSEPH L. KELLEY
Of The Evening News Staff.

It seems only authors whose names screen producers see commercial value in, get credit for their work flashed on the country's screens. Wonder what some of the ex-pant makers presuming to inform the millions what is and is not photodrama would do if it weren't for the authors. If you happen to be a Sir James M. Barrie or a Rupert Hughes you get your name in upper-case only because that name means dollars in producers' pockets. Why not give the devil his dues and encourage those who prove they can ride, but who can't afford a press agent to gush about them.

Ye Ed dropped into a theatre in downtown L. A. other night. Included on program was a rotten feature which would be flattered by even mention of its title and a two reel comedy that saved this feature from being featured by "walk-outs."

The comedy was one of those "Our Gang" rib-tickers turned out in Culver City studios of Hal Roach. It was titled "A Mysterious Mystery." Credit was given everyone from producer down to title writers but the author.

We made it our business to find out the author's name because "A Mysterious Mystery" proves what can be done by "brains" working in conjunction with even as immature minds as a gang of kids. Clean from first flash to fade-out this comedy stood out among the average run of rib-tickers like Statue of Liberty in New York harbor. It was funny and had a plot—a combination rarely seen on comedy screens.

The author's name is Ed Sullivan. People who will read this column never heard of Ed Sullivan. They never heard of him because he hasn't a press agent to gush about his doing's in exchange for a weekly wage.

They haven't heard of him because Hal Roach like so many others producing pictures couldn't see in the name of Ed Sullivan a few extra dollars added onto the net receipts from distribution. If Ed Sullivan had been Vicente Blasco Ibanez who, by the way, wrote the most terrible apology for screen drama ever perpetrated on the American public when he penned "Circe" for Mae Murray, or Rupert Hughes or one of the many alleged scenario writers in Hollywood, his name would have been flashed in big letters.

Producers always are yelping about encouraging the writer but they're the last ones to encourage him. The second vice-president in charge of distribution assisting with production only yelps about encouraging the unknown when his press agent's Corona gets cold from idleness and he wants to get on the front page of the dailies.

But if Elinor Glyn dashes off one of her sexy stories about the poor princess inveigling the romance-seeking sheik into making love with a tiger skin as the only inventive, the second vice-president will glut the printers with orders for 24-sheets in order to get Mme. Glyn's name in stud type.

If producers only realized it, unknown writers have given them the best material ever projected on the silver sheet. C. Gardner Sullivan, an ex-news-paperman, Tom Geraghty, ditto, and above-mentioned Ed Sullivan are only a few of writers who have contributed real stories to screen. Some of the screen's worst material has come from the pens of just "names."

When Susie McTish, who doesn't know comedy from melodrama, "is made" because some unknown writer has given her a story that even Susie's rapid, stupid expression couldn't spoil, Susie gets all the credit for making a "money-maker." The director is heralded as another Griffith and the Useless Fillum Productions takes a page in Saturday Evening Post to tell the world how good it is.

After Susie, her director, producer, property man and Susie's maid get credit, then Mr. Unknown Author is advertised not as the one really responsible for Susie's success, but his name is subordinate to the success of the picture. In other words, Mr. Unknown is good because the picture "went over."

If more Ed Sullivans were given credit when they supply a story of the worth of "A Mysterious Mystery" for movie fans' amusement, there would be more pictures worth going to see and less alleged dramas crammed down public's throats.

The Ed Sullivans of all professions and businesses whether it be shining shoes or writing Shakespearean classics, are the really constructive builders of our institutions and arts. The fellow with the "name" is more often the destructive element than the constructive. Give Mr. Unknown his rightful chance by encouraging him in his work. One way to do it is to give him credit for his work.

RINGSIDE GOSSIP by FAIR PLAY

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—California's new boxing commission, while generally regarded as one that will not put any obstacles in the way of professional boxing, is regarded as more or less inexperienced. This being the case Californians who have the best interests of the game at heart are wondering whether the commissioners will be up to meeting the shifts and turns of tricky managers and promoters.

Of course, there may be no shifty managers and promoters in California, but if there are not they will be there soon enough when the boxing game begins to get under way in earnest on the west coast.

Lots of them are about as stupid as foxes and it takes a commission made up of very wise guys, indeed, to check up on them and keep them from bunking the dear old public very other fight so.

Individually all the members of the new commission are enthusiasts for boxing but it remains to be seen whether they are deeply versed in the ins and outs of the sport as conducted by the shrewd men in it.

Captain Grellinger seems to be the commissioner best qualified to do things out. He has been in charge of American Legion shows at Hollywood for more than a year, is an overseas veteran, thirty-six years old.

William Hanlon, Sacramento hotel man and second member of the commission has never been connected with boxing in any way and Louis Almgren, for twenty years chief of the San Diego fire department was once an amateur boxer and likes the sport. None the less he is said to be hostile to the professional game. As third member of the commission he will, it is conjectured, more nearly represent the attitude of the governor than anyone on the board. Almgren, however, may take an entirely different attitude from the one expected.

It will be up to the men actively engaged in boxing to be as good as they can be, for, whether or not they can put things over on the commission, they cannot fool the public for any length of time and it will decide in another two years whether boxing is to stay in California or be outlawed.

The Berlenbach-Estridge lightweight battle Friday night did not serve to show Berlenbach was particularly good. It simply proved he was better than Estridge who was entirely helpless when the referee stopped the bout

Hornsby Leads League In Batting Percentage

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—For the fifth consecutive year Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals, leads the batters of the National baseball league with an average of .423 for 143 games, the highest percentage reached by a player since 1897 when "Wee Willie" Keeler hit .432. The previous record for successive batting laurels in the National league was held by Hans Wagner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who led the circuit four times in succession. Hornsby led Zack Wheat of Brooklyn, second highest man in the batting averages, by almost fifty points.

Prices of fish at St. Johns, Newfoundland, have recently been the highest of any time since the war.

In the second round, The Harlem negro gave away 15 pounds in weight and was frightened from the start. He was told to prop Berlenbach off with a straight left but he might just as well have tried to stop an elephant with a bamboo cane.

The bout did prove one thing and that is that the fans in large numbers will pay big money to see fights where there is a probability of a knockout and that they are tired of the bouts carried mildly on a decision. There were

We Are Now Identified with Glendale and its Upbuilding

It is with genuine pleasure that The Los Angeles Creamery Co. calls attention to the approaching completion of the first unit of its Glendale plant.

Over a year ago, The Company, recognizing the strategic advantages of a Glendale location, purchased 4 1/2 acres on Park Avenue and San Fernando Boulevard.

With your support, it is the ultimate intent of The Los Angeles Creamery Co. to convert the present nucleus into one of the finest dairy plants in the United States.

This plant---on Glendale ground---operated by Glendale men and women---serving Glendale homes---fulfills our ambition to make The Los Angeles Creamery Co. truly a Glendale "home" institution.

Our Glendale branch also serves Eagle Rock, Burbank and other San Fernando Valley points. Thus Glendale participates in the prosperity of these surrounding communities.

Union Watch-night services will be held tomorrow night at the First Methodist church, corner of Kenwood street and Wilson avenue. The services will be in charge of Dr. Lincoln A. Ferris, pastor of the First Methodist church; Rev. Charles M. Calderwood, pastor of the Congregational church; Rev. Ernest E. Ford, pastor of the Baptist church, and Dr. W. E. Eldmonds, pastor of the Glendale Presbyterian church, will officiate.

Regular prayer-meeting services will be held at the churches and the union service will begin at 9:30 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harkness, round the world evangelists who were formerly with Evangelists Chapman and Alexander, will be present. Mrs. Harkness is a contralto soloist and Mr. Harkness an able speaker. Young people of the churches will hold a forty-five-minute discussion of "Why I Am a Christian." The union service is being held in preparation for the John E. Brown revival campaign which will begin in February. From 10:30 to 11 o'clock a social and fellowship meeting will be held and refreshments will be served. All Glendale people are invited.

NEW YORKERS PUT MAYOR TO TEST

'Red Mike' Hylan Champion Of Straphanger Fights Traction Interest

By HARVEY ANDERSON
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—John F. Hylan—Red Mike, as New York's mayor is sometimes most disrespectfully called—is being weighed in the balance on his pet issue. If, like Belshazzar, he is found wanting, his political days may be numbered—one says "may be" because one can't afford to make positive statements about so resilient a politician.

For seven years transit has been the political football in New York. Seven years ago, Mayor Hylan, then a city magistrate, declared himself the voice in the wilderness to lead his people out of the transit muddle and to protect them from the transit "interests" that were trying to gobble them up. He rode into office on a wave that overwhelmed Mayor Mitchell, one of the most popular executives the city ever had.

Three years ago he cried again that traction interests were water-flogging the city, loading stock, stealing the people's money and trying to steel more by raising fares above five cents. With all but two of the city's newspapers against him—and most of them telling the people each day that the mayor was a petty politician, who was strangling the transit corporations by holding them to a five-cent fare, although it cost approximately seven cents to haul a passenger—Mr. Hylan was swept back into office with the greatest majority in local history.

Voice of Straphanger
For seven years he has been the thorn in the flesh of the subway, elevated and surface car men. He was the voice of the straphanger. He made occasional trips to crowded subway stations and issued long communiques to the people about the disgraceful service; he visited the zone of every accident and said each was due to rotten equipment.

He continually blasted away all the traction interests and their hirelings, demanding better service. And the sardine-packed New Yorkers, who literally fight each morning and evening for even a strap to hang to, regarded him as their champion.

Early this year, a committee of one thousand business men organized and demanded that he "say it with shovels." Little groups of people began appearing at City Hall to demand action in building subways. Last month, Mayor Hylan filed twelve charges with the governor against the state transit commission, a body created by the legislature in 1921 to control the building and operation of subways. He charged that they had been negligent, that they had not forced betterment of service. He asked for a trial of the transit commission. Governor Smith instead ordered a supreme court justice as a special commission to investigate the entire situation. Mayor Hylan first welcomed the investigation, then balked, and now says it was inspired to hurt him. But the investigation proceeds.

Commissioner's Finding
It has developed so far that where, in eight years prior to his administration, twenty-seven miles of subways were built, only one and a half miles were built during his administration, that contract the city made with the transit companies in 1913 to build subways that the companies were to operate, have not been fulfilled; that yards the city were to build have not been built.

It has developed that the mayor has no intention of completing the contracts unless he is forced into it; that he has refused to co-operate with the transit commission because, as he said, "I don't trust it." And that time after time he has approved subway routes suggested by the commission, only to scrap them later. On the other hand, the transit commission has repeatedly rejected plans brought forward by the mayor and his supporters. The commission apparently didn't trust him any further than he trusted it—chiefly because he proposed municipal ownership and operation.

On the stand at the last session of the hearing, Mayor Hylan still was the voice of the straphanger. Asked questions of a technical nature, out his objections to plans of the transit commission, he made a superb display of his knowledge.

"I'm a locomotive engineer, and I know about trains," he said once, referring to his early career as a subway motorman.

Another Victory Seen
He won the applause of all straphangers when, pressed still further on a point where he had been in error, he roared: "I don't care about the records. I know when I'm pushed and jammed. I know when I'm shoved off a train. I use the common sense God gave me."

SILK PRICES TO ADVANCE FOR 1925

Increased Cost Of Labor And Raw Material Forces Quotations Higher

By J. C. ROYLE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—The women of the United States are expected to wear more silk in 1925 than ever before. They also may be expected to pay more for it according to manufacturers. Prices of raw silk and of manufactured silk goods have kept approximate pace in the last decade. Each is about 90 per cent higher than the levels of 1913. But opposed to that, the hourly rate of wages in the same period has increased approximately 220 per cent. Manufacturers point to this fact and declare that prices for the manufactured product must advance or their margin of profits will do a disappearing act worthy of Houdini.

Nevertheless they expect an active and prosperous year in 1925. There has been more stability recently in the price of raw silk. Artificial silk has been pegged during a greater part of the last year and general business conditions are counted on to insure a strong demand. This contention is sustained by the fact that at present 80 per cent of the labor in the industry is employed at $2 per cent of the machine, is in operation.

Greater Activity
"The silk business," Horace B. Cheney of Cheney Brothers, one of the oldest silk manufacturing companies in the country, said today, "has been going through a period of extreme difficulty and depression with a large number of failures and very unsatisfactory prices. The prices of silk goods have not risen relatively with those of cotton and woolen goods or in comparison with those of raw silk and labor. Recently, there has been more stability in the price of raw silk with a much firmer tone and a decided upward tendency in goods."

There is at present a decided indication of better times to be looked for in the silk business. The lowest point of activity both in persons employed and in machine hours operated was reached in 1922 when only 50 per cent of the workers were employed and machinery was on half time. Now there is a decided indication of greater activity.

Stabilization Needed
"People buy on a rising market and stand aside and watch a falling one. There are decided symptoms that conditions in Europe are better than they have been and that they will continue to improve. Just what effect this European rejuvenation will have is problematical. It is certain business cannot be settled in the United States until conditions stabilize more in the world. On the other hand, settlement of conditions abroad will tend to cut into our markets through ability of European countries to produce more cheaply."

In view of these conditions it does not seem probable that we can look for booming times in all industries. But a gradual improvement here and abroad is probable and under such circumstances it will be a long time before we have to fear interference with our markets.

It is extremely probable that we may look for any considerable change in wage conditions here. Our own experience, as a firm, extending over a period of approximately 85 years confirms the bureau of labor statistics in relation to wages and employment. No decrease in wages has been shown except for the briefest periods."

Secretary Wood Talks To Glendora Chamber

Miss Meeker Tells of Visit to Dakota City

Miss Mildred Meeker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Meeker of 1320 East Colorado street, who is attending Knox college at Galesburg, Ill., is spending the Christmas holidays with a college friend in Winner, S. D., near the Rosebud Indian reservation. Miss Meeker wrote her parents the day before Christmas, telling of the heavy snow covering the landscape as far as one could see. She said the thermometer registered below zero. Winner is an interesting place according to Miss Meeker, who told of the picturesque Indians to be seen.

Mr. and Mrs. Meeker and daughter Evelyn, have had as holiday guests, their son, Warren Meeker, a student at Stanford university; Miss Elizabeth R. Ward of the West Lake school, Los Angeles, and John Baisley of Galesburg, Ill., who is to enter Stanford next month. On Thursday the Meekers and their guests will attend the Tournament of Roses parade and football game in Pasadena, and later have dinner at the Oakmont Country club.

America's Wealth Is Criticized By Chronicle

LONDON, Dec. 30.—Rome and Carthage, in the days of their greatest glory and profligacy, were nothing compared to America today. The accusation is made in a lengthy editorial which the Daily Chronicle published today. Commenting upon America's great wealth, it said:

"The suction of America's vast wealth is rapidly drawing in all that money can buy. There has been nothing like it before in the history of the world. The power of Rome and Carthage was small compared with that which America wields. All this power has been won not by physical conquest, not by the sword but by a new kind of imperialism—economic imperialism."

The Chronicle bewailed that Europe is being stripped of art treasures by rich Americans.

Charles Goff Slated To Become Dry Chief

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—The recent appointment of Charles Goff, as chief of prohibition agents in California, was the first move in a shake-up in enforcement circles in that state which probably will result within a short time in the selection of Goff as prohibition director to succeed Samuel F. Rutter, it was learned today.

Rutter, whose honesty was said to be unquestioned, is to be placed in charge of the permit branch of prohibition enforcement, which will be more in line with his previous experience in the internal revenue bureau.

Goff is to assume complete control of the investigating branch of prohibition enforcement as part of the general policy of separating, wherever practicable, the permit from the sleuthing branches.

Sugar Prices Drop On Pacific Coast, Report

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 30.—Following a sharp break in sugar prices on the New York market, prices along the Pacific coast have followed suit and a 35-cent drop is reported in the San Francisco market. The break came when the Federal Sugar Co. of New York reduced its price that amount as the result of a general leveling tendency of sugar prices in view of the marketing of new crop sugar, according to officials of the Hawaiian-California Sugar Refining Co. here.

Four Children Burned To Death In Bedroom

HARTON, Colo., Dec. 30.—Trapped in an upper bed chamber, four small children of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Stoffer were burned to death when fire destroyed the Stoffer home, ten miles northeast of here. The parents sustained severe burns in rescuing two other children from the flaming structure but were unable to reach the four victims, all girls ranging from four to ten years old.

Saxony shipped more than 75,000 violins, at an average price of $3.50, to the United States in 1924.

Community Workers In Appreciation of Aid

Appreciation of generous publicity given by The Glendale Evening News to the recent Community Christmas program is expressed in a letter from Community Service headquarters. It reads: "We want to take this opportunity to express the appreciation of Glendale Community Service for the generous publicity which your paper gave our Community Christmas program. In spite of the unexpected cold, we had a large crowd and presented a beautiful entertainment. We feel that our attendance was due in a great measure to the space which you gave to our announcements."
